1 Bewilderwood Treehouse Adventure

A huge forest of wild family fun and outdoor adventure. Treehouses, zip wires, jungle bridges, Crocklebogs, boat trips, marsh walks and great organic food.

2 Hoveton Hall Gardens

Beautiful woodlands and walled gardens, including woodland and lakeside walks.

3 You may notice the landscape here is different – there are no broads! The higher chalky ground here meant that the area never became waterlogged so peat never formed.

4 Wroxham Barns

Open daily 10.00am–5.00pm. Crafts, gifts, refreshments, junior farm, toilets.

5 Orchards – look out for blossom in spring.

6 Leafy hedges provide food and shelter for a variety of animals.

7 Ancient parkland with old oaks.

8 Coltishall

Enjoy a picnic here or visit one of the many pubs. One hundred years ago Coltishall was a bustling industrial settlement. Anchor Street, by the river, was the site of important wherry building yards. The former maltings on White Lion Lane are now residential.

9 Horstead Mill

Horstead has the remains of an old water mill and a pleasant meadow to picnic in. Coltishall Lock is the limit of navigation for the River Bure.

10 Great and Little Hautbois

Hautbois is pronounced 'Hobbis' locally. Great Hautbois has a ruined church and an attractive common and ponds. Little Hautbois is a small hamlet with only a few houses. You can see the Elizabethan Little Hautbois Hall from the path.

11 Buxton with Lamas

Buxton has an unusual village sign, a millstone. It is a reminder of how important the mill was. The mill burned down a few years ago and was rebuilt. It is now converted to private apartments.

Buxton was once the home of a 19th century architect called Thomas Cubitt. Anna Sewall, author of 'Black Beauty', is buried at the Lamas Quaker burial ground. A plaque commemorating her can be seen on the wall in the village. She was born in Great Yarmouth and spent many of her holidays on her grandfather's farm in Buxton.

Dismount to cross major road, then turn right and after 50 yds (46 m) follow sign to left to Coltishall Station B&B. A track to the left leads to the Bure Valley Path.

If joining path here from road via steps - dismount and take care.

Take care - route joins main road at an island.
